WASHINGTON

It's a bit early for cherry blossoms on the Tidal Basin. Something Japanese found a place here long before Detroit began to strangle on all those four-wheel miniatures getting (So sorry, GM) 25 to 30 miles per gallon.

Spring is official by calendar, almost as official as the icing down Watergate has given this cosmopolitan town of well over a million.

The city is seat of a lot of cynics, native and foreign born, who hope milder weather might thaw relations among the three branches of government heading for an impeachment showdown. For tens of thousands here, the diminution of federal government is a warning there's no place but out for them.

A feeling of ennui has settled along the miles of bureaucratized buildings. Things are too big, not just because of Watergate, but because of the whole apparatus of a federal city which now gets its first underground trains.

L'Enfant never planned nor the town's namesake never dreamed of what has happened to the city itself and suburban sprawl taxing Virginia and Maryland all round.

It is a city too important to be 75 to 80 per cent Black surrounded by hundreds of thousands who flee to turn surburbia white. Yet it happened.

It is a city too estranged from national reality to realize its beautiful buildings and memorials and embassies are enshrined within a double ghetto too little understood either by those who are elected to govern here or the rest who shudder to think what new irrelevant importunity will occur here.

I am here to "meet the press," that is a part of it not from Washington, but from somehwere else, those places which are fast finding popularity beyord the cosmopolitan East's ability to explain.

Some of us are here to get more of federal government before the reader's eyes in public notice, not the small-print kind, but a newer kind which is displayed and informative as possible about all manner of publication concerning the federal apparatus.

Not the kind that makes headlines. But the kind that requires readership to understand the workings of this mega-complex.

Some of us are here because the federal government is the biggest landowner, biggest employer, biggest buyer of private goods, biggest financier, biggest debtor.

Some of us believe a lot of others need to know more about this mega-complex however it functions in the 50 states.

Some of us believe this apparatus can be explained, and understood, not just in headlines and TV newscast, but in plain English published in newspapers throughout the nation and published by the federal government itself.

Some of us believe required public notice can.

Some of us reject the cynicism pervading this beautiful city, entombed in its cherished, marble walls, embalmed in the drying juices of disenchantment.

If we visitors of the press lived here, we might be a lot like they are. And this is not to say naivete is our major contribution.

In this country, as in Washington, "we" are sometimes not far from being "they."

And in Washington, they appreciate the Japanese cars for their mileage more than the cherry blossoms soon to bloom.

Fire Officials Suspect Arson

FIRE SWEPT through ten mobile homes on the Woodum Mobile Home Sales lot early Sunday morning, completely destroying the structures. City fire officials suspect arson in the fire, which was battled for two hours by local and out of town firetrucks.

10 Mobile Homes Destroyed On Woodum Lot

Arson is suspected by city fire officials in the Sunday night blaze that destroyed ten mobile homes on the Woodum Mobile Home lot in Cameron.

The fire broke out around 1 a.m. Sunday on the lot on North US 77 and five fire trucks from Cameron, Hearne and Rockdale battled the flames for two hours before putting it out.

City Fire Marshal Ed Bigbee said the fire "evidently was arson, as the homes couldn't have caught fire any other way." Bigbee said arson was "hard to prove without catching the arsonist in the act."

He said he called the state fire marshal and asked if an inspector should be sent over to investigate, but the state officials said his office couldn't find out any more than local officials had.

Bigbee said the ten homes probably had a retail value of at least $100,000 or more.

He added that the city has a standing reward of $250 for information leading to the conviction of arson within the city.

Arson is also suspected in the burning of eight repossessed mobile homes about a month ago, which were parked across the highway.

A fire at about 10 p.m. Saturday destroyed a barn filled with hay about a half mile from the mobile home blaze. Two trucks took one hour to extinguish the fire although it continued to smolder the rest of the night.

Other smaller alarms that were answered Saturday night were:

-- A trash fire on West 22nd Street. One unit put out the fire.

-- A small fire at the abandoned ice plant on East First Street. Firemen put the blaze out in minutes.

Bid Opening Date Changed

County Commissioners changed the date from March 27 to April 3 for opening bids on construction of the new county jail. Judge O. B. Harden said architects asked for the extension in order to complete plans and specifications.

Armory To Host Boy Scout Fair

Approximately 75 area youths will be on hand Saturday, March 30, at Cameron's National Guard Armory to participate in the Boy Scouts of America's Scoutcraft Fair from 2-6 p.m., according to Southern District activities chairman Jimmy Greene.

"The boys will demonstrate Scouting in action by showing parents, friends and the general public that Scouting is a training ground for America's boypower as they become America's manpower," Green reports.

The theme for this year's fair is "Scouting Is" and Cub Scout packs, Boy Scout troops and Explorer posts will provide the answer in live action demonstrations. They will display skills, watch other in action, broaden friendships, gather a pride in belonging and receive experience in sales by the selling of tickets.

Participants have been and will be selling Scoutcraft Fair tickets to friends and neighbors throughout the week. Admission is $1 per ticket with children under eight admitted free if accompanied by an adult.

The troop, pack and post receive a commission of the tickets sold to purchase equipment, help finance trips and supplies as the troops needs. The remainder of the money helps maintain Scouting programs in the Heart O' Texas Council, used primarily for camping and activities.

Each booth will be judged with blue red and yellow ribbons awarded for first and second places and participants, respectively.

The Cub Scout packs will demonstrate such things as handicrafts, string art, candle making, leathercrafts, genius kits and model train sets as well as stamp, coin and model collections.

Boy Scouts will air all Scouting, and such skills as hiking, camping, fishing, cooking, compass and map reading, conservation, communications and citizenship.

Explorers will demonstrate their special interest skills such as law enforcement, medical activities, sea exploring and engineering.

Anyone wishing to secure tickets should call any Scout or Jimmy Greene at 446-5020 in Rockdale. Tickets may also be bought at the fair Saturday.

Three Killed In Car-Train Accident

Three persons were killed and a fourth injured shortly before noon Saturday in Thorndale when a car in which they were riding was struck by a train.

Dead at the scene were Mrs. Emma Jean Sheppard, 44, of Thorndale and Garland Sherrill of Rockdale, driver of the car. Mrs. Sheppard's three-year-old son Richard died at 2 p.m. Saturday in Scott and White Memorial Hospital in Temple. A daughter, Tina Marie Sheppard, 7 , was listed in satisfactory condition in Scott and White Hospital.

Parks & Wildlife Notes Law Changes

Parks and Wildlife Department officials held a public hearing Tuesday afternoon at the courthouse, attended by several county hunting and fishing enthusiasts.

The informal meeting was conducted by Robert Van Cleave, P&W hearing officer, and other P&W officers including local game warden Dale Moore.

Van Cleave explained several changes proposed by the department which might affect hunters or fishermen in Milam County.

He said violation of hunting regulations would constitute a separate violation for each animal or bird killed over the legal limit, such as having two birds over the limit would mean a separate violation and fine for each bird.

A change proposed for the quail hunter would have the season opening the Saturday nearest Nov. 15 and running through the Sunday nearest Feb. 15, which may give a few more days to the season.

Another change is proposed in the bag limit of flathead catfish, the limit to be 5 daily or 10 in possession. Officials explained that the flathead is a valuable predator of rough fish and numbers are fewer than blue or channel cats.

It will be illegal to take fish with a "noodling pole," used by skin divers to lure spawning fish from their beds in lakes. The practice is apparently spreading over the state, being used on north Texas lakes. It will also be illegal to remove catfish eggs from public waters.

In answer to a question, Moore said it is illegal to hunt on a railroad right-of-way.

Grand Jury Still In Session At Franklin

A Robertson County grand jury was still in session as of Tuesday afternoon investigating a controversial check for $12,000 in Hearne City funds which was written to a non-existent engineering firm in 1971. The jury is also investigating a discrepancy in city funds.

Attorney Bill Palmos of Hearne gave the city a deposit slip in the amount of $12,000 March 21 which he said was delivered to him by a client, whom he declined to name.

A number of city officials, the city engineer, a CPA, and a polygraph operator were all subpoenaed to appear before the jury.

Hearne Dist. Atty. Bryan Russ said he would give grand jury members the results of his investigation into the two matters. From his findings and testimony from those subpoenaed the grand jury will determine whether criminal charges will be brought against anyone.

If no indictments are returned the grand jury could choose to make public a report of its findings but is under no legal requirements to do so, Russ explained.

License Plate Deadline Nears

Motorists are reminded that the deadline for displaying 1974 license plates is practically upon us, with midnight, April 1 being the time they should be displayed.

Valter White, Milam County tax assessor-collector, said the county tax office in the courthouse will be open all day Saturday to take care of last-minute buyers. He said there are still "a lot of plates to go" before all vehicles in the county are registered.

Motorists should bring the three-part form they received in the mail in January for registering their vehicles. If no form was received, they should bring car title and registration form.

License plates may also be purchased at other sites in the county, including Gaither Motor Co. in Rockdale, Ideal Motor Co. in Thorndale, Varners Store in Gause, and Davis Store in Sharp.

Cold Blast Ends Springlike Temperatures

The balmy, springlike weather that has prevailed since around the first of February changed for the worst as a Canadian blast of cold air swept over the state, lowering temperatures and brining icy conditions to part of Texas.

Sunday's low reached 33 degrees, according to the city weather figures and a high of only 55 was recorded for that day. Monday's low was 35 with a high of only 48. Brisk north winds added to the misery of the unexpected front.

Added to the misery were slow rains which did not freeze here, although icing conditions were reported in other parts of the state.

No reports are yet in on how the freakish spell dealth with tender corn and maize crops or how early gardens and blossoming fruit trees fared, but predictions are that damage was light.

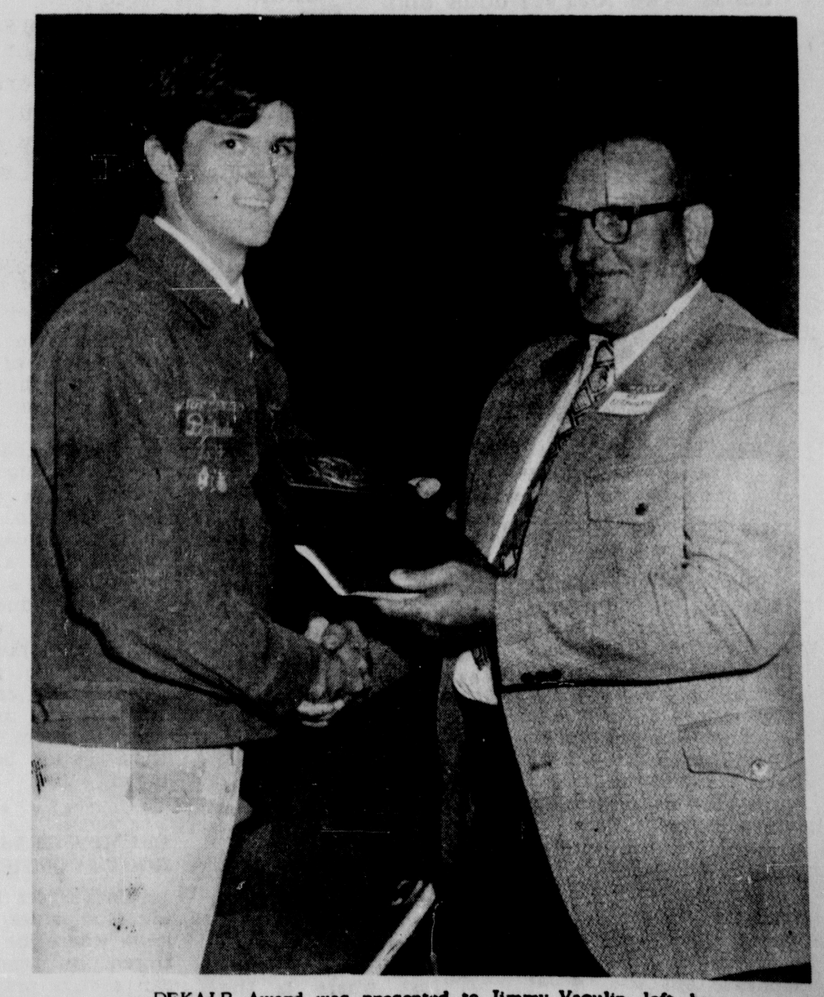

The unseasonable weather produced temperatures in the "teens" in the Panhandle and brought good soaking rains to South Texas, but failed to give the county much relief on the rain front. Only .54 inch fell here Sunday.

The Largest Stake...

Henry Kissinger is back in Moscow strengthening the Nixon-Brezhnev detente, which is weakened by the Israeli-Arab War and the President's Watergate problems.

The Secretary of State tells Russian leaders Nixon will be in the White House three more years, but he is urging the Kremlin to settle on new nuclear limitations for a summer summit signing.

A Presidential strength against the Senate voting impeachment if such proceedings are initiated in the House is the enormous success of Nixonian detente diplomacy with Russia and China. Kissinger of course was the key, earning as few men have the key to the executive washroom at State.

The President is being criticized now for his "legalistic" defense in the Watergate affair, which is his right as President, his party's leader and as a citizen. But the American people are critical because the President assumes a certain moral leadership which affects public attitudes toward his dual role as GOP Party chieftain.

Democratic House Speaker Carl Albert says Mr. Nixon is losing influence among House Republicans while courting greater support among Judiciary Committee Republicans.

All this boils to final decisions on the impeachment question while Secretary Kissinger is in Moscow bolstering the Nixon Administrations' major achievements in foreign policy.

Russia was prepared to intervene during the Israeli-Arab war and would have junked detente if the U. S. response of prepatory military alert had not deterred. Detente, the whole, major Nixon foreign policy would have disintegrated.

Now Kissinger is back bolstering, based on earlier successes in separating Jew and Arab at the Suez Canal, salving Arab excesses through an oil embargo.

Perhaps even the largest stake of the second Nixon Administration is now being driven, survival of tenure for the President himself.

Hollas To Boston...

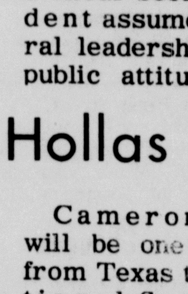

Cameron's Dave Hollas will be one of six students from Texas to attend the National Symposium for Science and Humanities in May at Boston.

He is another of several Cameron high school students like Gary Fuchs and Herbert Nance who travel to San Diego, Kansas City and now to Boston to see what science offers modern youth. And a couple of Yoe youths recently have made All-American in athletics.

Dave gave a research paper which was good enough to make the final half dozen. It is no small achievement.

And they all find the same thing: the "big time" is a humbling and exhilerating experience. And you continue to excel or, by comparison, drop out of sight.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

WHEAT SHORTAGE SCARE DEBUNKED

Rep. John Melcher (Mont.) ". . . The American consumer is being scared by the American Bakery Association's hysterical propaganda of high-priced bread due to short wheat supplies. Their predictions have been coupled with anguished calls for export controls on wheat to prevent further foreign sales.

"Anyone who takes a realistic look at our wheat stock and transportation situations can separate out the verbal chaff to assure U.S. consumers there is plenty of wheat available in the country . . .

"Foreign sales of wheat are significantly in the public interest. It helps our balance of payments and wheat sales during 1973 have been one of the factors bringing our balance of payments back into favorable position. Agricultural products in world trade should not be tampered with on the basis of scare tactics of an individual industry that evidently has not property assessed all of the available supplies of wheat . . .

"Just where is the wheat that the bakers seem to think is in short supply? It is awaiting boxcars or trucks to carry it from the county elevators to markets.

"Thirty to forty million bushels of grain are awaiting shipment in Kansas and Nebraska too.

"Rather than scaring the consuming public by calling for a wheat export embargo, the baking companies should take a look at all the wheat that is available in wheat-producing areas that simply cannot be moved to market . . .

"There is plenty of wheat if we can get it off the farm and out of the elevators and to those who bake the bread."

* * *

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

We suspect the baking companies already know where the wheat is stored. But scare tactics can always prepare the consumer for a bread price hike.

UN Plans Conference On World Population

By Anthony Goodman

UNITED NATIONS

Reuter -- The number of babies born during the next quarter of a century could be determined by the outcome of a U.N. - sponsored conference in Bucharest from August 19 to 30.

As the highlight of the U.S.'s 1974 world population year. The world population conference marks the first global attempt to grapple with the threat of a planet turned into a human ant heap.

Although there have been two previous population conferences -- in Rome in 1954 and in Belgrade in 1965 -- they were technical gatherings attended by experts in their private capacities, not by government representatives.

The statistics which have prompted the convening of this new governmental conference are starkly evident in an era of dwindling natural resources and mounting pollution of man's environment.

While it took the whole of human history, until sometime early in the 19th centurn, for the world's population to reach the one billion mark, only another 100 years were needed to double that figure.

By 1950 it sttod at approximately 2.5 billion, and at the present rate will double again by 5 billion by 1985.

At the end of the century the population of the world, now around 3.7 billion will be close to 6.5 billion, most experts predict.

Expressed in other terms, it has been calculated that about one quarter of all the people who have ever lived are alive today.

While the delegates from about 140 countries hold their 12-day meeting in Bucharest, the net growth in world numbers of more than two million would be sufficient to populate a city the size of the Rumanian capital.

The overriding aim of the conference is to induce governments to take the awesome population equation into account in their development plans.

One measure of the task is that several dozen of the least-developed countries have never even conducted a census and have only a rough estimate of the size of their populations.

The secretary - general of the conference, former Mexican foreign minister Antonio Carrillo - Flores, outlined its purpose this way in an interview with Reuter.

"As a minimum, what we should expect is to convince as many countries as we can -- that population policies must become part of any well-balanced, well-conceived program for social and economic development and for improvement of the quality of life."

Conference debates are expected to revolve around such topics as recent population trends and future prospects, relations between population change and economic and social development, links between population, repopulation change and economic and social development, links between population, resources and environment, and population, family and human well-being.

It is hoped that the conference will finally approve a world population plan of action, laying down basic guidelines for the future.

But like the U. N. itself and its main agency in this field, the U.N. Fund for population activites, the plan of action will have to recognize that the wishes of sovereign states remain paramount in formulating population policies.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editor:

I used to think that getting elected and sent to Washington meant you must have a fairly good knowledge of human nature, but I have begun to doubt it.

Take the Arab oil embargo. When the Arab nations decided to exert their power and teach the United States and a bunch of other countries a lesson, I guess that was the reason, everybody in Washington gnashed his teeth and said what are we going to do -- this country doesnt' produce enough oil for its own use and without imports we're in for years and years of shortages. Washington even printed up 12 million dollars worth of gas rationing coupons and got set for the worst.

Five months later the Arab nations lift the embargo, and oil will flow again. as long as it lasts. You want to know why? You can attribut it to high-level diplomacy if you want to, but I have a notion there's a better reason, MONEY.

When the Arab nations launched the embargo, they stopped selling 3 million barrels of oil a day. at $12 a barrel, F.O.B. the sheik's tent, that's 36 million dollars a day. How long do you think any group of people in going to give up 36 million dollars a day? That's over a billion dollars a month, including February. In five months they lost over five billion dollars and for countries needing rain as bad as they do, that's a lot of money. In fact, it's a lot of money, rain or shine.

Anybody with a fair knowledge of human nature should have known the embargo wouldn't last. Nobody for long is going to turn away a cash customer when there is nobody else to take his place. The market for oil is in the U. S. without 100 million cars, not in Russia or China where only a few top politicians get to ride.

I don't know if the Arabs taught us a lesson in world politics but I figure they learned one themselves about recognizing a good thing when they see it.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Time Limit On Safety?

For how long a period of time may a manufacturer be held responsible for the safety of his product? Say a stepladder collapses. Does it matter—legally—whether it was bought 20 days ago or 20 years ago?

Of course, in a particular case, there may be specific guarantees or standards of safety that apply. But the law has developed some broad guidelines as well.

For one thing, the manufacturer is usually not responsible merely because his product has "grown old" in the normal fashion. As one court put it, in rejecting the claim of a housewife injured by an aged washing machine:

"There is no duty upon a manufacturer to furnish a machine that will not wear out."

On the other hand, a manufacturer may still be held responsible years after selling the product, if the passage of time had nothing to do with the accident. Take this case:

A bar stool, after being in use for three years, caved in under an unlucky customer. The manufacturer, sued later for damages, protested that he could not be blamed, since the stool had been "out of our hands" for such a long time.

Nevertheless, the court decided the injured customer had a legitimate claim because the accident was traceable to a faulty welding job done at the factory. The court said this was not the kind of hazard caused by usage of the product.

In one unusual case, the time lag was 13 years. The gear shift knob in an automobile had shattered when a passenger was thrown against it. There was evidence indicating that the plastic material used in the knob was subject to deterioration in sunlight. There was also evidence that the deterioration would not be apparent to the average person.

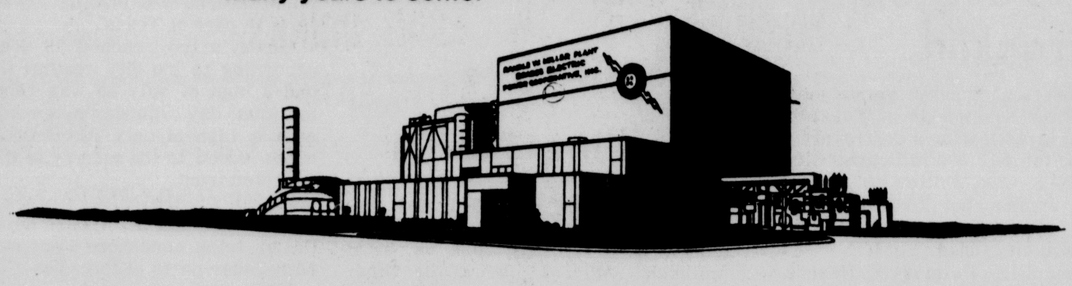

The court said the jury could reasonably conclude that the 13-year interval did not prove the knob's safety, but only that it hadn't really been tested until this particular accident.

Bugs Attacking Sorghum

By Bill McCutchen

Milam County farmers it seems were making too much progress too early toward a grain sorghum crop and mother nature in the form of bone chilling weather, greenbugs, and chinch bugs has stepped in to complicate the farmers life.

Spraying for greenbugs was quite common last week in the Branchville area with scattered applications necessary in the Cameron and Burlington area.

The extent of greenbug damage in grain sorghum is dependent upon greenbug numbers, plant size, vigor and stage of growth, moisture conditions and predator presence.

On plants up to 6 inches in height treatments should be made when visable damage is noted and greenbug colonies are observed. Stands of young sorghum can be lost quickly to greenbug infestations.

Chinch bugs were also causing damage to young grain sorghum prior to the rain. Hopefully the rain settled the loose soil well enough to control the chinch bug problem.

WEED CONTROL

A grain sorghum control demonstration was established Tuesday March 19th on the John A. and Johnnie Smith farm near Branchville with the cooperation of Dr. Dave Weaver, Extension weed control specialist.

The objective of this demonstration is to determine the effectiveness of preemergence herbacides and herbacide mixtures for the control of weeds and grasses in grain sorghum. It is hopeful that some of these materials will give control of the troublesome Colorado grass as well as other annual grass and broadleaf weeds.

Materials used in the demonstration included, Atrazine, Propazine, Igran, Atrazine, Ramrod, Atrazine and Herbon Propazine and Ramrod and Propazine and Herbon.

ALFALFA WEEVIL

Have you been wondering what has been happening to your clover pastures that you usually are able to depend on for grazing in the early Spring.

If you will inspect the dead, dying, and riddled clover you will find a light brown weevil with a broad, dark strip running about halfway down the back from the head, and probably some of the small cream coloned larval which devour the plants.

In most instances the damage is already done and treatment would not be advisable.

Water Corporation To Have Meeting

Southwest Milam WSC will have its annual meeting Friday at 8 p.m. in the Rockdale junior high school cafeteria.

Three board members will be elected. All members are urged to attend.

Butz Asks Fertilizer Delivery

Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz, has requested the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) to direct railroads to make available on a preferred basis, additional rail cars to assure the essential and timely delivery of fertilizer to the nation's farmers.

Secretary Butz requested, in a letter to ICC Chairman George M. Stafford, that the ICC use its emergency authority to direct railroads to make 3,000 more covered hopper cars and 1,000 more boxcars available from now until May 1 for the transportation of fertilizer and fertilizer components from manufactures to dealers in time to meet current planting needs.

Need for the priority on additional rail transportation, Secretary Butz, pointed out, is temporary and should have minimum impact upon other shippers.

AG Scholarships Open To Students

Graduating high school seniors interested in coming To Texas A&M University to study in any field of agriculture can apply for a number of scholarships, but there is one ear-marked especially for Central Texas youth.

The Stiles Farm Foundation at Thrall in Williamson County provides about $20,000 annually for scholarships for qualified youth from Williamson Hays, Bell, Travis, McLennan, Falls, Milam and Comal Counties.

Currently there are 24 students at A&M under this scholarship, which awards $500 per year to individual students, according to Dr. R. C. Potts, associate dean of agriculture. The scholarship is renewable if the recipient maintains a 3.9, or "B" average. Ten new scholarships will be awarded this year.

Scholarship applications must be submitted by April 1, says Potts. Forms are available from his office or from county Extension agents and high school counselors in the counties concerned. Applying students should have a 3.0 high school average and at least a 1000 SAT score.

Something To Cry About . . . Sheep and Lambs On Feed Are Down But Up . . . Livestock Slaughter Increases . . . Feeder Cattle Prices Decline.

If you like onions (and who doesn't) here's something to cry about. The Texas spring onion crop for 1974 is forecast at 18 per cent above last year's crop. This year's spring crop is expected to be the largest since 1967 and the third largest on record.

Peak movement of the crop is expected in April. The quality of the crop appears to be excellent in the Rio Grande Valley. Harvest in the coastal bend area is expected to get underway in April. At Laredo, the crop is making good growth with the first harvest due during the early part of April. In the San Antonio-winter garden area cold weather has reduced stands some. But the crop is making good progress and harvest is expected to get underway there in April or May.

Acres for harvest this year are estimated 21,000, which is an eight per cent increase compared to a year ago. Yield per acre is expected to be up nine per cent from last year.

A 53 PER CENT increase in sheep and lambs on feed is noted by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service as of March 1 compared to 1973. Drylot sheep feeders with a lot capacity of 2,000 head or more had 113,000 sheep and lambs on feed for slaughter as of March 1. This is four per cent below the number on feed as of February 1.

Current intentions to market are: March 46,000; April 44,000; and May 23,000. April and May intentions are incomplete because additional lambs could still be placed on feed and marketed during this period.

RED MEAT production in Texas increased four per cent compared to a year ago. A total of 201,000,000 pounds of meat was produced in the state during January.

Cattle slaughtered numbered 317,000, calves 8,700, hogs 131,000 and sheep and lambs 116,000 head. Cattle and sheep and lambs increased but calves and hogs dropped below a year ago.

Nationwide, commercial production of red meat was two per cent more than a year earlier and 12 per cent more than December of 1973.

FEEDER cattle prices are being affected due to losses of feedlot operators. This has been happening since mid-January. A number of reasons are listed as the cause of this new round of confusion in the livestock industry.

Compared to fat cattle prices, feeder cattle were over-priced.

The number of feeder cattle available is also another cause for the feeder cattle price situation. January sales of cattle and calves at Texas livestock auction markets were 17 per cent above a year ago. Most of these were feeder cattle.

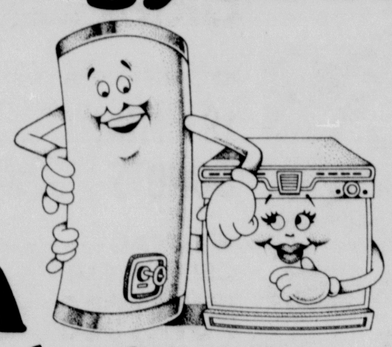

Another weakening factor for feedlots was a drop in the fed cattle market. Choice 900 to 1,100 pound steers sold direct from feedlots averaged $50.45 per hundred weight during the first week of February. By the last week of the month, prices had dropped 13 per cent to around $44 per hundredweight.

Feedlot operators, meanwhile, are losing $135 to $155 per head, which is $35 to $55 per head more loss than they experienced in late 1973.

FARM export totals are rising again. Agricultural exports for the fiscal year ending June 30 are expected to total about $20 billion. This would be almost $1 billion above the estimate made last November.

Reducing plan for energy users

Plan A

How to save electricity when using dishwashers-water heaters

1. Wash full load of dishes instead of partial loads.
2. Load dishes according to manufacturer's instructions for most efficient operation.
3. Use dishwasher detergent only.
4. Keep filter-screen free of food waste. (Clogged filter causes unit to overwork.)
5. Repair leaking hot water faucets. (A small leak can waste up to 700 gallons a year, plus the energy used to heat it.)
6. To avoid loss of heat, insulate exposed hot water pipes whenever possible. Protect electric water heater from cold air as much as possible.
7. Select proper size water heater for your needs. One that's too big uses energy needlessly.

Conserve electricity and you help conserve one or more of the fuels needed to produce it: natural gas, coal and oil. Conserve fuels and you help assure that there will be enough to meet essential needs for electricity in the future.

When you pass a TP&L office, warehouse, generating plant or other facility, you'll see that we've turned off all non-essential lighting. And, in as many other ways as possible, TP&L is reducing its own uses of electricity.

If you would like additional information on conserving electricity, call or see the Customer Service Representative in the TP&L Office.

Cholesterol May Not Always Be Diet Nemesis

The American consumer public is being confused by extremists in a nearly constant barrage of warnings that either high cholesterol foods will lead everyone to coronary heart disease, or that diet cholesterol is not related to heart trouble.

The campaigns caused many people who need have no fear of cholesterol to avoid such nutritious staples as eggs, meat, cheese and whole milk, and unfairly penalize those segments of agriculture that produce these commodities. Conversely, it has also lulled into false security the many persons who run an additional risk if they do not control their cholesterol intake.

These are the worries voiced by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station's Dr. Raymond Reiser at a recent American Medical Association Conference on Nutrient-Nutrient Interactions. His research since 1932 has led him to conclude that cholesterol is not always the diet nemesis it has been made out to be.

Reiser's investigations into nutrition and metabolism of lipids (fat-like substances) have won international attention in the science world. He is a Distinguished Professor of Biochemistry at Texas A&M University and this year's winner of the prestigious Norman E. Borlaug Award.

Cholesterol, he says, is an important part of animal and human tissues, especially in the nerves and brain, and is a chemical forerunner of many hormones and of some vitamins. Products of cholesterol metabolism are also necessary to fat digestion and absorption.

Reiser pointed out to the AMA researchers that the blanket indictment of cholesterol by such well-intentioned groups as the American Heart Association can be counterproductive. The AHA, he said, preaches national abstinence or a low intake of foods containing saturated fats and cholesterol.

At the other extreme is the egg industry, for example, which Reiser says is trying to convince the public there is no solid evidence that cholesterol in eggs will lead to heart trouble.

"Actually, both are wrong in a way and both are right in a way," he said. "Saddening is that fact that the consumer is overlooked as an individual and is lost in a mass of generalizations that too often characterize the debates on saturated and unsaturated fats and cholesterol."

The issue has intensified to the degree that the AHA is said to be bringing suit against the egg industry.

Reiser called for "specifics" in dealing with a health problem as serious as that of coronary heart disease.

Consideration should be given to the fact that most people can handle diet cholesterol very easily without pathological increase in cholesterol in their blood he said. Any excess that builds up after eating fatty foods is passed off.

"Why, then, should these people deny themselves the the pleasures and benefits of eating such beautifully nutritious foods as eggs, meat, milk and cheese just because a medical organization rationalizes that by telling everyone to avoid or eat very little of foods with saturated fats they hope to catch the few who need the advice. Any why should agriculture be blackballed for producing foods known to be beneficial to humans for thousands of years?" the nutritionist asked.

On the other hand, there is a small percentage of people, who through heredity or some other complex reason, are unable to tolerate high diet cholesterol levels.

'Fuel Savers' May Be Frauds

Motorists hoping to economize on gas during the energy crunch should exercise a little healthy skepticism before they expend cash for so-called new "fuel-saving" devices for cars, warns Bill Arnaud, Director of Emergency Road Service for the American Automobile Association, Texas Division.

According to Arnuad, many advertisements of these "Amazing new inventions" claim they will save gas (some up to ten miles per gallon) and improve engine performance.

The "add-on" gadgets, generally in the form of various spark plug and carburetor attachments, are priced from $7 to $75.

As of December, 1973, some 50 different types were already on the market, and more are expected to be advertised if the nation's fuel situation worsens.

"Unfortunately," says Arnuad, "the better performance claimed in these ads often is more in the mind of the user than in technically measurable proof."

If you're still tempted to experiment with such a device, the motor club official urges that you first check it out with a reputable mechanic, preferably one that services your car regularly.

Even if you're told a specific device might save gas, he warned that its use could avoid your auto warranty and lead to long-term engine damage.

"A far better route to fuel economy," says Arnaud, "is to replace worn conventional parts, make certain your car is properly tuned, and improve your driving habits."

Arnaud said that motoring habits that reduce gas consumption include driving at moderate and steady speeds whenever possible, avoiding "jack rabbit" starts, and never letting the engine idle for more than a minute while parked. He pointed out, too, that properly inflated tires also save on fuel.

SAVINGS BONDS

According to Henry Siebman, chairman of the Milam County Savings Bonds Committee, the 1974 Savings Bond goal for the county is $820,000. January sales of E and H United States Savings Bonds totaled $59,063 for 7% of the sales goal.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

It takes a conscious effort on the parts of the state's employers and employees to prevent even routine jobs from producing injury or death, says the state Health Department.d

In the United States last year, according to the National Safety Council's preliminary figures, 14,200 deaths occurred from work accidents and another 2,400,000 persons suffered disabling injuries, including more than 100,000 in Texas.

A survey of 33,000 Texas employers is underway to uncover the toil in Texas. The Occupational Injuries and Illnesses Survey is a joint venture between the United States Department of Labor and the Occupational Safety Division of the State Health Department.

Each employer will receive a two-page questionnaire for use in the program. It is the second year of the survey, and the Occupational Safety Division will have statisticians at regional headquarters in six cities for a part of the survey period to assist employers. The cities are Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, Midland, El Paso and Tyler.

Information obtained from the form is simply a tool to keep people from getting hurt on the job. Employers can use it for action on their own, and the State Health Department's safety engineers can use it as a guide to concentrate their efforts on industries where the most -- or worst -- accidents occur. It can be used in conjunction with other information to point up the need for additional safety and health standards.

"In other words," says a State Health official, "if we find out where the accidents or illnesses are occurring, investigations can determine the reasons."

Information from the Industrial Accident Board -- which handles workmen's compensation cases -- can be used to pinpoint disabling injuries. If it is found that a certain industry has a high accident rate, data can be used to determine the accident causes. The Industrial Accident Board reports tell Occupational Safety workers the type of injury, what caused it, the part of the body involved, the industry in which the accident occurred, and the occupation of the injured employee. Industries are broken down into eight groups according to size, and it takes a lot of statistical work to compile and coordinate all data on any one industry.

Raw figures can tell you how many injuries occur in a certain type of employment during a given year, but they don't pinpoint the total exposure of the workers to the risks involved. That's one way supporting data comes into play.

The Occupational Injuries and Illnesses Survey will give the State Health Department the necessary information to carry out its occupational safety program.

Paper One Resource Adaptble To Recycling

By Bill Hobby

AUSTIN

It seems as though an era of shortages is upon us.

Paper is one of the resources which is becoming increasingly scarce. Fortunately, it is a resource which is particularly adaptable to recycling.

Much progress has been made in reusing paper. And the possibilities for community and individual involvement in this conservation effort are numerous.

Waste paper can be reused as a raw material for new paper products, as a source of energy, and as a medium either for sanitary land fill or composting.

The key to using waste paper is, of course, economics. The technology is available or emerging, and markets for waste paper do exist.

Presently, the bulk of used paper is going into the solid waste stream. The paper industry, however, is steadily reducing this waste.

The American Paper Institute reports that in 1971 nearly half of the fibers used for paper and paper board production came from reclaimed wastes.

Almost 30 million tons of paper were consumed by the U. S. in 1970. Of this, 2.2 million tons of waste paper were channeled back into paper manufacturing. Newsprint manufacturers consumed more than 400,000 tons of the waste paper recovered.

The largest portion of newspapers recovered comes from the collection efforts of community organizations. Some city collection programs are underway and more should be encouraged.

In Madison, Wisconsin, sanitation department trucks collected bundled newspapers put out by residents on a voluntary basis. Garbage trucks are equipped with racks to hold the old newspapers picked up during normal collections.

Participation in the program has been high, and it is showing a profit. I would hope that cities in Texas will give consideration to starting such programs.

The possible use of waste paper as a source of energy is especially interesting in light of the current energy crisis. A ton of shreaded organic refuse has about half the BTU value of a ton of coal. Using this portion of trash and garbage cannot only reduce the amount to be disposed of, but it can save more valuable conventional fuels.

In our day-to-day lives, we must be aware of how we, as individuals and as members of a community, can increase the efficiency with which we use our natural resources.

The collection and reuse of waste paper is one way which is simple and economicla.

1. NEWSPAPERS "zero-in" on YOUR customers!

78% of the U.S. Population (18 years and older) read at least one newspaper every day. 25% of the people read two papers every day!

Newspapers reach all socio-economic groups. People like newspapers and that includes all age-groups (adults, teens and children).

2. NEWSPAPERS get ACTION!

Newspapers offer "At Once" opportunities. Readers react! You feel results at the cash register the next day.

3. NEWSPAPERS offer SELLING FLEXIBILITY!

Whatever your store needs . . . specific groups, specific interests, specific geographic areas . . . your local newspaper can deliver. Your ads can go small (1 col. x 5). Your ads can be block-busters (2 page spread). Go Hi-Fi Color . . . or use a classified ad. Newspapers give your ads more flexibility than any other medium.

4. NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING produces SALES!

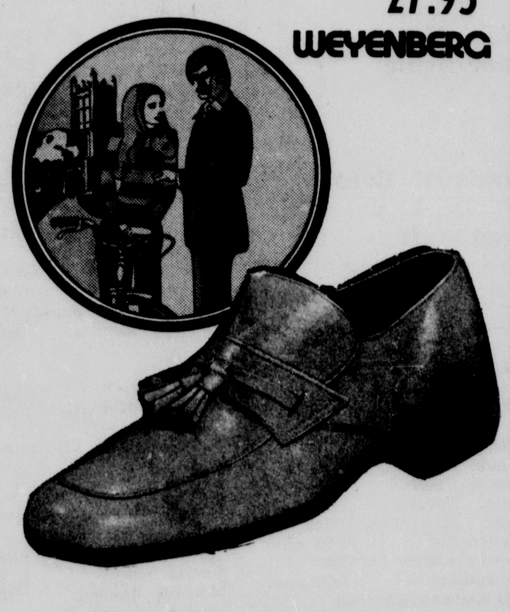

Newspapers cost far less to use than any other advertising medium on a cost per thousand basis . . . or on a result basis. The "biggies" in the retail business (Sears, Wards, Penney's, The May Co.) got big through the sales action of newspaper advertising!

Sissy Says Briscoe Lost Gas

HOUSTON

Frances "Sissy" Farenthold said Texas lost over 31 million gallons of gasoline this month because "Gov. Dolph Briscoe gave the Federal Energy Office the wrong figures" on which to base gasoline allocations.

Farethold said Texans got 31,600,000 gallons, "Less than we were entitled to because of the ineptness of the current Governor.

"And this happened in a State where 40% of the Nation's gasoline is produced!" she said.

The Governor has the responsibility of providing the Federal Energy Office (FEO) with figures on Texas gasoline consumption," Farenthold said. She noted that Briscoe told FEO that Texas' consumption was 578.3 million gallons of gasoline in March of 1972.

It was not until after the FEO made its March allocation decisions that it was discovered Texas had actually consumed at least 609.9 million gallons of gasoline last March, Farenthold said.

"Not much math is required to see that Governor Briscoe gave the FEO figures that fell short by thirty one million six hundred thousand gallons of gasoline," she remarked. She spoke Friday at the University of Houston.

The man who prays can hear the prayers of others . . . especially when he prays for those human needs which are common to all men.

But even when he prays for needs that are solely his own, he knows that those who care for him are joining their prayers with his.

You're never quite sure the message was meant for you. You are tempted sometimes to think it was intended for someone else . . . until you realize that this answer which God has inspired in your heart does fit your prayer.

There are times when it's good for everybody on the party line to pick up the phone at once . . . and speak what they all feel . . . and listen to what they all need to hear.

That happens regularly on Sunday morning.

Cobb Named Chairman Of FB Cotton Committee

Darrell Cobb of Rogers, chairman of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Advisory Committee, has also been named chairman of the Cotton Advisory Committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation. He was recently notified of his appointment by William J. Kuhfuss, president of the 2.3 million-member national farm organization.

The national committee will meet April 9-10 in New Orleans to review Farm Bureau Policies relating to cotton and to make recommendations on cotton problems to the AFBF Board of Directors.

Farm Bureau state and national commodity advisory committees provide leadership for the various commodity divisions which are now being organized on the county and state level. Purpose of the commodity divisions is to surface and attempt to solve problems pertaining to specific farm and ranch commodities.

The TFB has divisions organized for cotton and rice with considerations being given to organizing other divisions. The state farm organization is also in the process of identifying the major commodity interests of each of its 153,000 members for easy communications on commodity matters.

The TFB Cotton Division, which was organized last year, is comprised of the chairmen of county FB Cotton Divisions in 60 counties which produce more than three-fourths of the cotton grown in the state. The state Cotton Advisory Committee consists of seven of the county division chairmen.

Cobb, who is 41, farms about 1,500 acres of dryland cotton on his farming operation in Bell and Milam Counties. He also produces grain sorghum and has cattle.

State Tech Counts 2990 Students

Registration at the end of the first four days was 2990 for the spring quarter at the James Connally Campus of Texas State Technical Institute Institute.

Dr. Jack E. Tompkins, State Tech vice president and general manager of the James Connally Campus, said about 75 more students have pre-registered, but probably would not pay their fees until the end of the week.

Enrollment at the James Connally Campus when the school year began in September was 3123.

"Normally there is a decrease in enrollment during the year because of dropouts, graduates and other factors," Tompkins said. "However, the decrease this year is not as great as usual."

Tompkins said the spring quarter enrollment includes about 300 new State Tech students.

Sports -Murray-Go-Round

Those awarding Darrell Royal and the University of Texas, the mythical 1974 Southwest Conference football recruiting championship best wait and watch Frank Broyles and Arkansas. Word is Frantic Frank, in a late surge, is now outrecruiting Oklahoma in the Soomer state. If he comes up with Super Running Hoss Jerry Eckwood of Brinkley, Arkansas, Broyles will probably have eclipsed UT's haul. There are those who would not trade Eckwood for Earl Campbell, the celebrated UT signee out of Tyler.

Eckwood has signed with Memphis State. But, of course, that is not binding on Arkansas.

Whatsat? Baylor gets slapped by the Soutwest Conference for football recruiting violations? The Reverend Grant Teaff? Good buy Jack Patterson? (Baylor Athletic Director) What is this leading to? The SWC has four private institutions, supposedly the weak-sister have-nots. Two, Baylor and SMU, have taken it on the chin for breaking conference rules and Rice has been accused of paying football players.

HERE COMES FRANK!

Well, those Church Schools must not be too bad-off, financially. First, Methodist SMU was flagged for paying football players for exceptional play. Now, Baptist Baylor has been convicted of excessive summer job salaries for footballers.

This apparently proves, among many things, that there are more ways than one to purchase football players.

BIG EIGHT, GUILTY FOUR:

While on college football recruiting, it would be nice if that Houston Jerk who keeps writing about the Big Eight Football superiority over the SWC would cease to conveniently ignore the obvious fact that edge was built at the cost of FOUR Big Eight schools landing on NCAA probation for illegal recruiting: Oklahoma, Colorado, Kansas State and Kansas.

When 50% of your conference membership has been convicted of illegally recruiting athletes over a four-year-period. you have no right to brag of superiority. Nor, does a woolyheaded writer have that right, either.

It is that "Look-the-other way attitude" which has caused some SWC alums to demand their coaches do it the Big Eight way.

He is mixed up somewhere.

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN

by Vern Sanford

Chases Female Mosquitoes

In case you don't know it, those pesky mosquitoes that bother you while you're fishing are females.

Not only that, they are pregnant females.

Oh boy! We've been slapping at those fems—even tried to kill 'em. And they are loaded with over 100,000 young'uns.

The female mosquito reaches maturity a few days after hatch. She is impregnated almost immediately by the male mosquito and she lays those 100,000 eggs in four to seven days. One female often produces millions of offspring a year.

The male mosquito is a vegetarian and he doesn't need to draw blood from us humans. Neither does the female, except while she's pregnant. But that's most of the time, and she must have a blood meal before each incubation.

There's one thing the old gal can't stand . . . and that's high-frequency sound-waves. So, what's more natural than for someone to come up with an electronic mosquito repeller called Skeeter Skat. It uses sound waves to scatter the "skeeters".

Doesn't kill 'em—just drives 'em away.

Keeping mosquitoes away from humans poses quite a problem today.

Sweet-smelling perfumes, hand lotion and face powder which the women use attract mosquitoes like a magnet.

Even what you eat may make a difference!

The Badgerettes will play Chilton for bi-district Monday April 1, at 7:00 p.m. at Rosebud-Lott.

CLEAN HOUSE WITH A HERALD CLASSIFIED

Watch Out For Garden Peddlers

The spring season is prime time for fly-by-night salesmen peddling lawn and garden plants, products and often "magic" cure-all materials.

"By practicing a little precaution, the amateur horticulturist can prevent his dollars from being stolen," says Everett Janne, landscape horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Most nursery men and others in the lawn and garden business are honest, reliable people. But the increased interest in gardening as a hobby among homeowners has brought an influx of gypsters, points out Janne.

"No one in Texas can sell nursery or florist plants without a salesman's certification of inspection from the State Department of Agriculture. Ask to see it upon purchase," suggests the Texas A&M University System specialist.

Consider doing your business with local, reputable merchants with an address where they can be contacted. This will prevent any "here-today, gone tomorrow" business from offering unobtainable future services. Always check with the local Better Business Bureau or Chamber of Commerce before dealing with door-to-door operations, advises the horticulturist.

Janne has other words of precaution.

"When buying a service, never pay for a job in advance. Always have service agreements put in writing. Have the seller state exactly what will be done and what materials will be supplied. Do the same with pest control services, too."

He also suggests pricing items at a local nursery before going the mail-order route.

Pork Referendum and Producer Board Election

Being certified by the Commissioner of Agriculture of the State of Texas for this purpose, the Texas Pork Producers Association, 2422 Taho, Sherman, Texas 75090, proposes a referendum election on May 14, 1974 under provision of Article 55c, Vernon's Civil Statutes, on the proposition of whether or not the pork producers in the State of Texas shall assess themselves a maximum amount of 10 cents per head on all slaughter animals to be collected at the point of first processing or sale and to elect members of a 15 member commodity producers board to administer proceeds of such assessment to be used for research, predator control, disease and insect control, education, and promotion designed to encourage the production, marketing, and use of pork.

The referendum and election will be held by mail ballot which will be provided to all eligible voters not later than 15 days prior to the election. Ballots must be mailed to the polling place at Sherman, Texas before midnight on the date of the election.

Any person within this state engaged in the business of producing, or causing to be produced slaughter hogs for commercial purposes is eligible to vote, including owners of farms and their tenants and sharecroppers, if such person would be required to pay the assessment proposed.

Any person qualified to vote at the referendum may place his name in nomination for membership on the proposed commodity producers board by application to the above organization signed by himself and at least ten other persons eligible to vote in the referendum. Such applications must be filed at least 30 days prior to the election date.
